FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE

ESI International Celebrates 10 Year Anniversary with 10 Year-Old Pricing

London – 1 Sept. 2009 – ESI International celebrates a decade of operations in the United Kingdom this month with 1999 pricing for all public course delegates that register in September for UK courses that complete by 31 Dec. 2009. During its ten years of operations, ESI's London office has expanded to become one of the company's three global regional offices covering the UK, Europe, the Middle East and Africa; managing offices in Stockholm, Frankfurt, Dubai, Madrid and Johannesburg.

This month ESI also is honouring ESI training veteran Iain McPhail, one of the first project managers to take a course with ESI in the UK in 1999. McPhail, who just completed his 18th course with ESI is currently a programme manager with Hitachi Data Systems. "I am now PMP certified and need PDU's to maintain my certification. ESI courses combine training and PDU's providing greater justification for the training budget," said McPhail. "Another benefit of ESI is the range of courses from project management to programme management, business skills and business analysis allowing me to refine my knowledge."

"ESI has enjoyed great success driven by customer support over the last decade," said Alan Garvey, Managing Director, ESI EMEA, "and we wanted to find a way in these tough times to say thanks to the project management community." In addition to the special anniversary pricing, ESI also has launched a pan-European scholarship programme for unemployed European Economic Area and Swiss nationals.
